DR. MOSS DIES UNEXPECTEDLY AT HOSPITAL

Death of Widely Known Physician Follows Operation on His Tonsils Performed This Morning.

PROBABLY DUE TO HEART
For Many Years He Was Member of Medical Faculty—Long Service in Local Practice.

Dr. Woodson Moss, who practiced medicine in Columbia probably as long as any other physician, died unexpectedly at Parker Memorial Hospital this morning. Death came shortly after 11 o'clock following an operation for the removal of his tonsils. He was 60 years old.

No definite time has been set for the funeral services. Burial probably will take place Thursday, but this will not be determined until it is learned where his children can arrive.

Dr. Moss went to the hospital about a week ago, preparatory to having his tonsils removed. He was given a thorough examination in the hospital and it was determined that the operation could be performed. The doctor withstood the operation well and was apparently in strong condition when he recovered from the effects of the anesthetic. He was removed to a room in the hospital and his condition continued such that Mrs. Moss, his relatives and friends were not kept by telephone that he was doing well and that the operation was successful. Only a few minutes later, he told his nurse that he would like to turn over. He was given aid and the next moment the end came. It is believed that death was due to the condition of his heart, but this has not yet been determined by the physicians in charge.

HE WAS BORN IN COLUMBIA

Dr. Moss was a native of Columbia. He was born here on September 23, 1852. His father was Colonel James H. Moss, a distinguished lawyer, and his mother Mrs. Susan Moss. Colonel Moss died in 1873 and his mother died five years ago at the home of E. W. Stephens here. The names of his grandparents, James W. Moss and Judge Warren Woodson are familiar in Central Missouri history.

Dr. Moss was graduated in medicine from the University of Missouri in 1874 and studied medicine both in St. Louis and New York City. He began practicing in 1874 and in 1875 was made instructor in anatomy in the University. In 1878 he was made professor of theory and practice of medicine. He continued in the practice of medicine on the medical faculty until a few years ago when he retired under a pension of the Carnegie Foundation. At the time of his death he held the title of emeritus professor of medicine.

During his time of service with the University he spent three years in Europe in making a special study of Dr. Koch's treatment of tuberculosis. Before his retirement from the faculty he served as University physician.

Dr. Moss practiced medicine in Columbia from the time of his graduation until about the time of his retirement from the faculty. He had at one time one of the largest practices of any Columbia doctor and bore the reputation of being one of the most successful physicians the community has ever had. His courage and loyal devotion to his practice and patients won for him a most enviable reputation. When he finally gave up his practice, he was urged by some of his friends to continue.

"I cannot do it," he replied. "I have reached the time when it seems almost impossible to see people suffer. The strain in such cases sometimes seems to be too great for me to bear."

This devotion to his patients and personal feeling that he had toward each in administering to their health wants was characteristic of Dr. Moss.

In May, 1883, Dr. Moss married Miss Sarah A. Anderson. Five children were born to them. One son, James Hugh Moss, died in 1904 when about 14 years old. The other four children survive. They are: Miss Ruth Moss of Philadelphia, Mrs. Sarah Marshall of Chicago, Woodson Moss of Chicago and Oliver Perry Moss of Blytheville, Ark. His wife died in 1905.

In 1911 Dr. Moss married Mrs. Luella W. St. Clair, then president of Christian College, Mrs. Moss, now emerita president of Christian College, survives.

BROTHER OF MRS. E. W. STEPHENS
Besides his widow and four children, Dr. Moss is also survived by his sister, Mrs. E. W. Stephens, and his brother, James H. Moss of Columbia. A sister, Mrs. M. D. Hutton, died two years ago. Dr. Moss was one of the leaders of the Baptist Church, taking an active interest in the affairs of the church and its Sunday school. During his many years of practice in Columbia he also served as president of the Boone County Medical Association and of the Missouri State Medical Association.

The county had no more ardent Democratic worker than Dr. Moss. He was interested in politics and took a lively interest in all campaigns. He always exhibited a keen interest, also, in civic affairs and in all movements intended to better the town and county.

Few persons more thoroughly enjoyed outdoor life than Dr. Moss. He was an expert fisherman and often went with friends on camping and fishing trips in the country.

"The city and county has lost one of its best-loved and most useful citizens," said a Columbia business man this morning. "No truer or nobler man and friend, or a man of finer and greater character has ever lived in this community. He was that type of man, for instance, who could engage in a political campaign and emerge with all of his opponents as his real friends."
